Notes for CONTRIBUTORS

The Journal of European Industrial Training was first published in the mid-1970s. Over the years it has brought insights, techniques and thoughts to trainers and educators worldwide.

The journal's success depends on its contributors. Whether you are a novice author or an experienced one, the Editor would like to invite you to consider sharing your thoughts and experiences with others like yourself.

We can promise a considered and constructive review of your article, and, for contributions considered suitable, publication in the Journal of European Industrial Training

Manuscripts
All manuscripts and editorial communications should be sent to the Editor – Thomas N. Garavan, Lecturer in Human Resource Development, Department of Personnel and Employment Relations, University of Limerick, Ireland.

Editorial objectives
To provide all those involved in research and practice in training with ideas, news, research findings, case examples and discussion on training and development. The journal focuses primarily on activity in Europe, although draws on insights from the rest of the world where they are seen to make an appropriate contribution.

Contributors should always endeavour to spell out the practical implications of their work for those involved in training. Case study articles should normally specify:

- background and context
- the objectives of the training programme or initiative
- the salient events of the programme or initiative
- the results, and how they were obtained
- the implications for others involved in training and development.

JEIT prints only articles which have not been published elsewhere in English. The Editor may consider an article which has previously been published in another language. In such cases, the author must make this clear.

Article composition
Articles should normally be between 2,000 and 4,500 words. Shorter articles can be published as "Comment" pieces. A series of articles on a particular theme will be welcomed. Responses to papers which have appeared in the journal, either as letters to the Editor or as response articles, will be welcomed.

Presentation
Articles should be typescript, double spaced and with wide margins. Please send three copies.

Headings and subheadings should be used, at approximately 500-750 word intervals. Please ensure that headings and subheadings are clearly identified.

Manuscripts will not normally be returned, so you should ensure you hold a copy.

Please supply the article on paper of no less than 80 gsm weight with high quality print. This will enable electronic scanning if needed.

Accompanying documentation
Where possible, please accompany your article with a computer disk containing the article in ASCII format. Please mark on the disk your name, the article title, the name of the journal (JEIT) and the software you have used.

On acknowledgement (or sometimes on acceptance) you will be sent a form to complete called a Journal Article Record form. This asks for information which is important to the publisher in its article and journal management system, and you should complete and return the form as soon as you receive it.

References
Please put references at the end of the article. They should be numbered sequentially as they appear. Example:
"as Smith[1] commented some years ago..."

1. Smith, D.J., "New directions for management education", Management Decision, Vol. 15 No. 4, 1977, pp. 401-3.

Further readings, which are not referenced directly but which may be useful for readers, should be included if appropriate.

Charts, diagrams and figures
These should be called "Figures" and numbered consecutively (e.g. Figure 1, Figure 2 etc.). Please make sure they are clear and can be reproduced easily. Indicate where in the text they should appear ("Figure 1 about here"). Each figure should have a brief title (e.g. "Figure 1. Schematic of the programme").

Tables
Tables should be numbered consecutively, independently of any figures. Indicate in the text where they should appear. Give them a brief title. Please ensure that they are clear and legible.

Abstracts and keywords
Please write an abstract of 150 words or so which summarizes the main points of the article. It should be sufficient for a reader to decide whether or not they want to read the whole article.

Please also note up to six keywords or descriptors which describe the content of the article. These would include geographical area, if specific, industry, functions, managerial activity, and processes.

Refereeing and review procedure
JEIT is a refereed journal. This means that articles submitted for publication will be read and commented on by one or more reviewers, drawn from the Editorial Advisory Board or elsewhere, as well as by the editor. On the recommendation of reviewers, an article will be:

- accepted, meaning that it is suitable for publication as it stands or with very minor editorial amendments, which can be incorporated during the editorial process;
- returned for revision, meaning that it is potentially suitable for publication, but needs some further work;
- rejected, meaning that it is unsuitable for publication (often because it does not fit with the editorial objectives of the journal).

The review process is an anonymous one, meaning that reviewers do not know who has written the article, and that authors do not know who will be reviewing it. This ensures impartiality.

JEIT aims, above all, for application to the world of training and development, for working trainers. As such, reviewers are encouraged to look for:

- conformance to editorial objectives, i.e. is the article about training or of interest to trainers etc.?
- clarity of expression and readability
- implications and applications; what does it all mean?
- solidity of research methodology, for research based articles.

Copyright
Authors submitting articles for publication must warrant that the work is not an infringement of copyright. Papers and contributions published become the legal copyright of the publisher, unless otherwise agreed.
